entertainment news with a side of dish

I am The Dishmaster. I launched this blog in 2010 to provide my personal take on Hollywood from an insider's perspective. My unique commentary gives a positive view of entertainment news. Unlike other blogs, I don't post paparazzi photos, which is a standard that I hope other blogs will soon follow. I also feature unknown musical and acting talent, because Hollywood no longer does its job in finding up-and-coming stars, or in promoting independent movies that don't gain media traction. I hope to provide a healthy alternative to the internet bullying that I see elsewhere. That being said, you will often see me call-out celebrities on their bad behavior. However, that doesn't include circling their cellulite with a white pen.
